Attributes to Emulate

Attributes to Emulate

They understand the times, so they are ahead of the game, and they could make the necessary shifts timely. They operate by Kairos, not Chronos.

Attributes to Emulate

They know what the nation should do. They are the 2.5% innovators and 13.5% early adopters on Roger's diffusion of innovation scale. They are not consumers and laggards.

Attributes to Emulate

They are leaders together (“200 chiefs”).
There is a synergistic component to their operation. They are collaborators.

Attributes to Emulate

They were with their families. They have healthy relationships.

“Enormous changes are coming our way. These are hard trends that we will not be able to ignore, and they will affect you, your family, your work, and the people/communities/nations you care about.”

Glenn Booke

Example of Things that Will Change

Example of Things that Will Change

Over the next ten years, computing power will be 100x what it is today. Quantum and Nano-computing would be the order of the times.

Example of Things that Will Change

Technological progress will eliminate many of the jobs people hold today (and create new work opportunities).

Example of Things that Will Change

Cyberwarfare will become as dangerous as nuclear warfare.

Example of Things that Will Change

Urbanization and globalization will accelerate.

Example of Things that Must Not Change

Example of Things that Must Not Change

The Word of God will not change, but the way we deliver it must change.

Example of Things that Must Not Change

The Great Commission and the Great Commandment will not change

(Matthew 28:18-20; Matthew 22:37-40).

However, as Men of Issachar, we must not underestimate how communication technologies can enhance our ability to share the gospel this season.

Example of Things that Must Not Change

Our need for wisdom must not change.
